Darin –

This sounds great in theory, but I think it may just be another thing for people to tag. I really don't see kids using these. Maybe if they were inside an enclosed park, they would be a great idea. I may be totally wrong, but that is my first impression. Sorry to be a downer. I absolutely agree that we need to find creative ways to make our public spaces safer and more family-friendly.

Subject: New Project

Hi Everyone,

I hope you are all having a great summer. I just wanted to inform you that we are applying for a grant to build "play spaces" in nontraditional areas. What we would like to do is install structures like the ones in the photos at the Normandie and Hoover Plazas. It would make a more inviting space for families and hopefully reduce or eliminate loitering, especially at the Normandie Plaza.

Please offer any input you might have concerning this project. Like I said, we haven't even applied so nothing is decided.

Take care,

Darin French
